

SOWING TIMELINE FOR VEGETABLES

These dates are distilled from 34 of years trial and error in my gardens, where plenty of failures have served to highlight best timings for best results. You can sow many of these seeds at different times and they will grow, but the outcomes will be different, such as lower yield, more pest and disease, perhaps a tendency to flower rather than leaf. Hence for example I do not recommend sowing salad rocket and mizuna in the spring because its their flowering season, although many gardeners do and are happy with their smaller yield and more flea-beetle holed leaves, compared with August sowings.

Dates are based on the climate of Somerset in south west England, USDA zone 9, last frost mid May and first frost mid October.

February

Sow undercover broad beans, spinach, lettuce, peas for shoots, onion, salad onion, early brassicas, parsley, coriander, dill. With warmth aubergine, pepper, chilli - sow these by early March

Sow outside broad beans, garlic if not already

March

Sow undercover as for February plus peas, Boltardy beetroot, celery & celeriac mid month. With warmth tomatoes - sow before mid month for undercover cropping, melon at month's end

Sow outside broad beans, garlic if not already, lettuce, spinach, peas, onion, salad onion, early brassicas, parsley, coriander, dill, parsnips, first early potato late March.

April

Sow undercover as for March (except its getting late for celeriac, sow asap), leeks, leaf beet, beetroot (all varieties), chard at month's end, tomatoes for outdoor growing. With warmth and around mid month, cucumber, courgette, squash, sweetcorn

Sow outside all potatoes, broad beans, lettuce, spinach, peas, salad onion, early and autumn brassicas, parsley, leeks, leaf beet, carrots

May

Sow undercover leeks, winter squash by early May, courgette, French and climbing beans, leaf beet, beetroot, chard, lettuce, winter brassicas, salad onion, swede at end May

Sow outside same as undercover, also maincrop potatoes in early May, carrots, parsnips but keep seedbed moist until germinated.

June

Sow undercover beetroot, swede, lettuce, leaf beet, chard, kale, purple sprouting broccoli, cauliflower for both autumn & spring, calabrese for autumn harvests. After solstice sow endive, chicory and Florence fennel.

Sow outside same as undercover, also carrots.

July

Sow undercover beetroot in first week, lettuce, leaf beet, chard, endive, chicory, Florence fennel, chervil, coriander, land cress, wild rocket, Chinese cabbage and spinach after mid month, salad rocket at end July.

Sow outside same as undercover, carrots until mid July.

August

Sow undercover endive and Florence fennel until 10th, lettuce (late August sowings to overwinter as small plants), claytonia, oriental leaves, salad rocket, chervil - coriander - dill - land cress - wild rocket - spinach by mid August for autumn cropping, any salads in mid August for planting September and to grow under a cloche, spinach - spring onion - spring cabbage late August for overwintering small.

Sow outside same as undercover but approximately a week earlier

September

Sow undercover For outdoor planting, only lambs lettuce, mizuna, salad rocket, for outdoor planting to overwinter small, in early September sow lettuce, spinach, chervil, coriander, dill.

For undercover planting sow in early to mid September all salads (includes spinach, chard mustards, kale etc which you can grow large for cooking), spring onion.

Sow outside same as undercover but a week earlier, last salad sowings by 10th September.

October

Outside sow garlic. You can also sow onion sets though I recommend caution with these as they risk harbouring mildew over winter which infects onions in May and thus reduces growth/storage potential of spring-sown onions.

Last sowings

Depending where you live, from early November its worth sowing broad beans to overwinter as small plants, such as Aquadulce Claudia; sowing in December is possible too, likewise for garlic.
